

North York Little Prints Diversity Project St Cyril B & A Program

The children were given the opportunity to identify the continents

The children assisted in creating the map and talking about their travel journey.

The students were able to identify places where they visited with families or places their parents come from

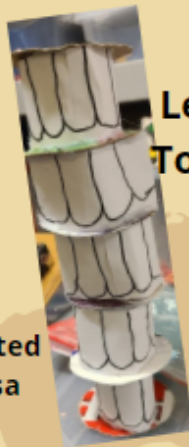

The students discussed female leaders of the world. Using clay, the children produce figures that represented some of these women.

The students then painted their figures.

A pair of students recreated the Leaning Tower of Pisa Structure

The Leaning Tower of PISA

After a view of the St. Basil Cathedral located in Russia some students created the onion dome, and then painted it to make it look colourful

These activities developed interest in children to have a conversation about where their ancestry is from. When each of them had an individual thread to show their family's journey they felt represented. We then extended the topic of countries to looking at some of the most powerful women coming from these countries to add talk about the importance of female leaders.

The children also researched some of the famous monuments around the world and they helped in creating them.
